

EMORY

NELL HODGSON
WOODRUFF SCHOOL OF NURSING

NIH/NINR ART Fellowship Program

APPLY NOW

Join the Training to Reduce Health Inequities!

Emory University's Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing is accepting applications for the NIH Advanced Research Training (ART) Fellowship Program. This program aims to train nurse scientists and researchers in related fields to address social, cultural, environmental, and political determinants to improve health outcomes for individuals, communities, and societies.

Past Participant Quotes

"A thorough and rewarding ...incredibly valuable."

"Very enriching. Faculty were very helpful and inspiring!"

"I cannot wait to see how my research grows through the skills and mentorship."

Benefits

- $750 travel support
- Funding and support for preliminary studies
- Matched mentor and proposal development

5-Day Course

June 1-5, 2026
Atlanta, GA
+
Year-long mentoring

Eligible Applicants

- Pre- and postdoctoral fellows, early career faculty
- Letters of support from research mentors and institutional leadership required

Important
Dates Apply by: Jan 9, 2026
Notification: Feb 14, 2026

Contact

Dr. Jill B. Hamilton
jbhamil@emory.edu

CLICK OR VISIT <https://bit.ly/nih-art-fellow> TO APPLY

